On about 24 June 1954, a secret meeting commenced in East Berlin, involving Wilhelm Pieck, Walter Ulbricht, General Anton Antonovich Gromov, the commanding general of Soviet troops in Germany, and General M. M. ~~Shchegolev~~, the Soviet Commandant of Berlin. The meeting was still going on on 27 June. These meetings take place every three months; their purpose is to make plans for the coming quarter. The press is occasionally admitted, but only to see Pieck and Ulbricht. The participation of the Soviet generals, as well as the decisions ~~made~~ in the meetings, is kept secret.
